Dominomineo

When the children were too young for most other games, they could at least match the dots on dominoes so we played this game quite often. Yet dominoes aren't just for young kiddos, but for big kiddos as well. So when the boys arrived home from work one Saturday, they found dominoes on the dining room table along with a bucket of iced sodas ready for an evening of fun.

When they finished showering Sonia and I served guacamole with chips and several homemade pizzas, hot out of the oven.

Dominoes is one of the few games that can safely be played while eating, so with left hands on pizza and right ones on dominoes, we played, and played, and played.
