Dignified and imposing stately Bantry House and Garden looks out at cerulean skies and down the watery expanse of Bantry Bay in county Cork, Ireland. Inspired in design and thoughtful in concept, the property was planned to incorporate the landscape, gardens and mansion as a singular experience. In 1739, Captain Richard White purchased the site as his family home. Today, members of the eighth and ninth generations of the White family own and operate the estate and continue to reside there.
